MARBLE

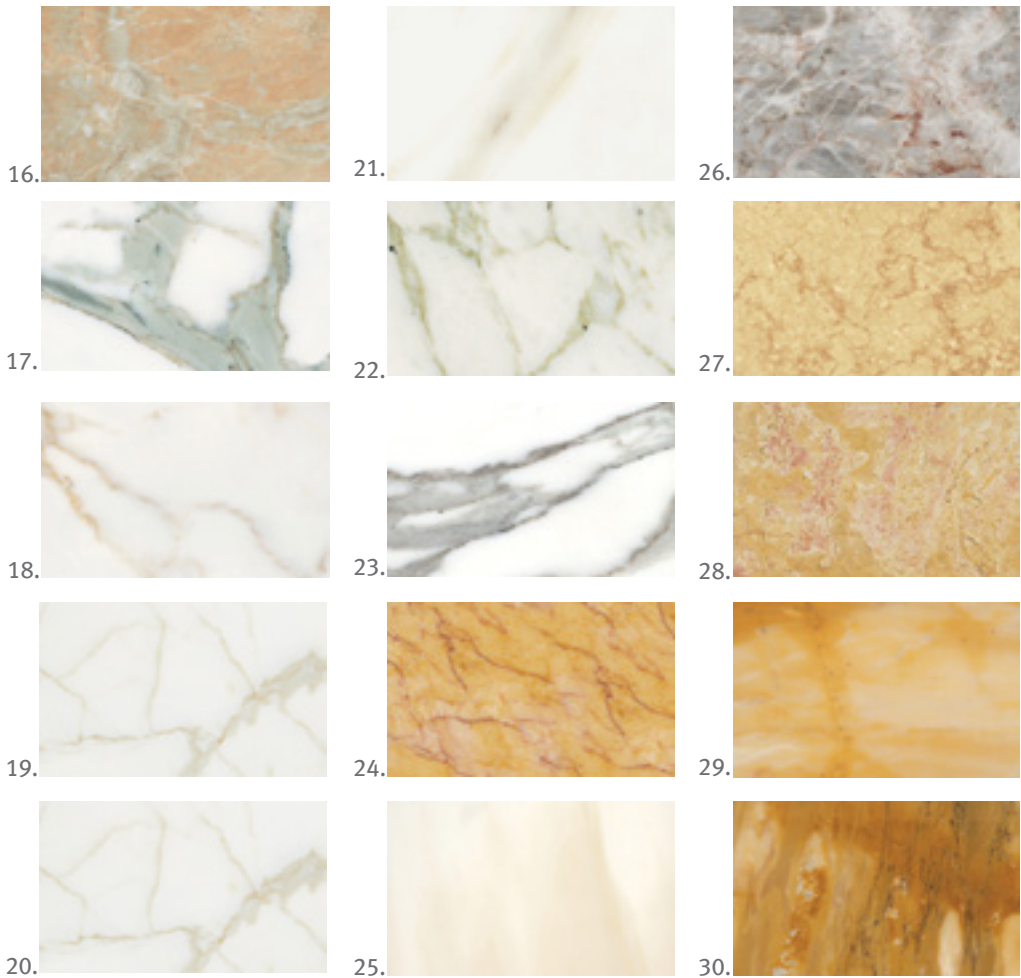

Marble is a metamorphic rock. It was once limestone, but over time, the combination of intense heat and pressure caused the limestone to re-crystallize. Foreign substances often entered the stone during this process, creating an infinite variety of colors, textures and veining. Marble is a lot like people; no two are exactly alike.

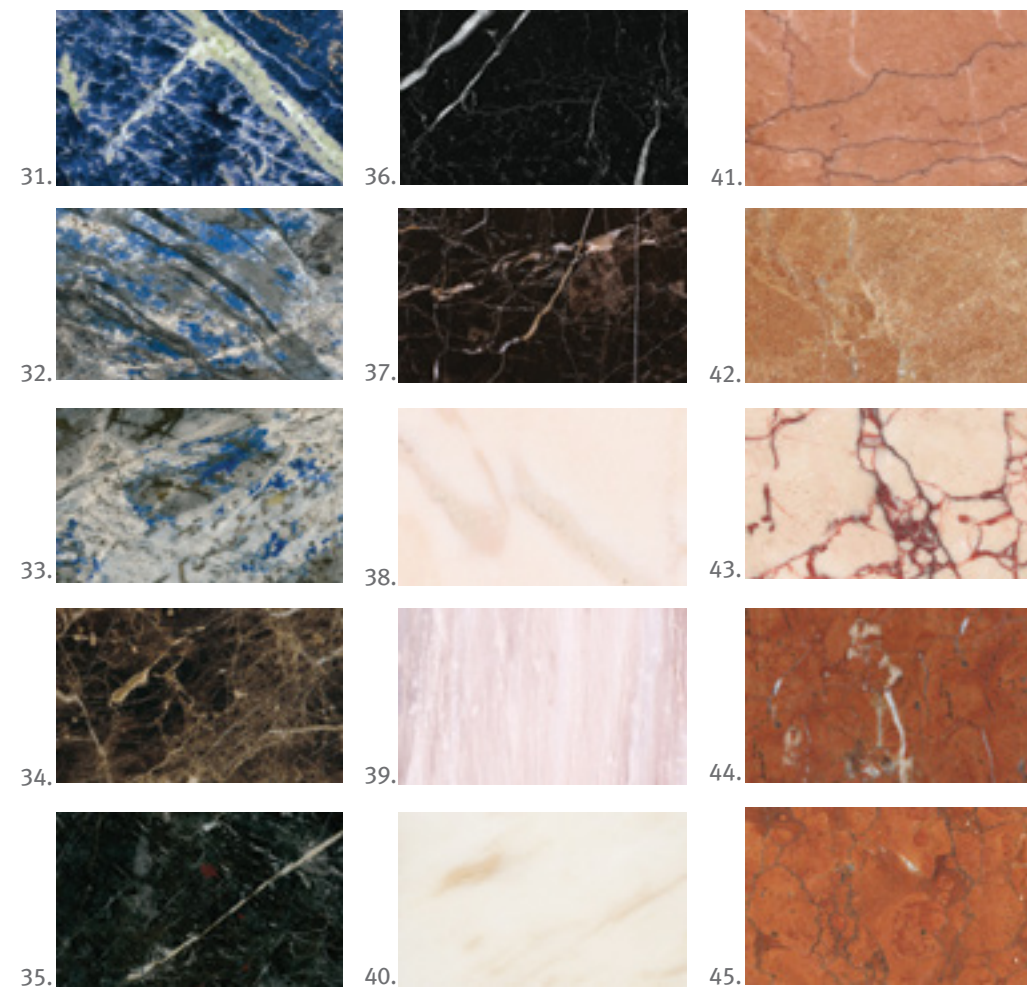

At Al-Basel, marbles are cut from premium quality stones, which has been selected by our company for its natural color, grain structure and durability characteristics.
